Prof. Ignatz Goldziher,
Budapest, Hung.

Dear Sir:

You are most probably aware of the fact that the students of the Hebrew Union College of this city undertook the task of publishing an Annual of some scientific and literary value. Our first attempt was successful. The press, both here and abroad, spoke of our publication in laudatory terms, and we received letters of encouragement from various men of thought. We have, therefore, decided to continue our work, and shall do all we can to make the Annual a permanent publication.

Now as editor of the Annual of 1906, I take the liberty of requesting you, Sir, to favor us kindly with a short contribution from your pen. Your work is greatly appreciated here, and your article, short as it may be, will add much to the worth of a scientific Jewish publication. The date set for going to print is December first, 1905.

Please let us know at your earliest convenience if you would kindly consent to favor us with your contribution.

Hoping to hear from you soon, and thanking you in advance in the name of all the Students of the Hebrew Union College, I am
Most Respectfully Yours,
Max Reichler.
