Dear Sir:

By the time this letter reaches your hands you will no doubt have received a copy of the Second Volume of the "Jewish Encyclopedia" which was issued from our press early last month. That we may benefit by your advice as a member of the Advisory Board in regard to the future volumes of the Encyclopedia, we invite your impartial criticism of the work already done, and should be glad to receive from you any suggestions that you may care to make which, in your judgment would be beneficial to the enterprise whose best interests we all have at heart.

We should be glad to avail ourselves of any notes on topics included or omitted, new collaborators; any suggestions relating to the pictorial side of the work, or any other points that you may care to make.

May we ask you for a general opinion on the contents and execution of the first two volumes, so that we may place your views before our Editorial Board and may be guided by them in the production of the volumes that yet remain to be published.

Thanking you to let us hear from you promptly, we are,

Yours very truly,

M. Wagnalls Company
