Dear Professor Lukács:

We are very proud to report that History and Class Consciousness has now been published in America. I am enclosing a copy of the American edition with this letter. The MIT Press book differs only in the binding and jacket design from the edition produced by Martin Eve of Merlin Press in Great Britain. This, as you undoubtedly know, is the first of a series of your works which we will be translating and publishing in this country.

We are exceedingly pleased at this prospect and delighted that we have been given this opportunity to make a significant cultural contribution by issuing your work. Your German publisher Luchterhand has been most cooperative as has Merlin Press with whom we are sharing the efforts of translation and printing.

Above all, we hope that you are pleased with this publication and in particular that you find the translation accurate and stylistically pleasing. We offer our very kindest regards and best wishes.

Yours sincerely,

Michael Connolly
