Bibliotheca Neerlandica.

In the beginning of June 1963 the first two volumes of the series BIBLIOTHECA NEERLANDICA were published - a series of 16 volumes, which intends to give in translation to the English-speaking world the classics of Dutch and Flemish literature, published throughout the ages.

The series, sponsored by the "Society for the promotion of the translation of Dutch literary works", will be published by Messrs. Heinemann, London and Messrs. Sijthoff, Leiden. Both the Belgian and the Netherlands Government are equally cooperating in the production of this series.

On behalf of the Belgian and the Netherlands Governments I have sent to you through Messrs. Sijthoff the first two volumes of the series, viz. "The Waterman", by Arthur van Schendel and "Old people and the things that pass", by Louis Couperus.

I would appreciate if you will kindly acknowledge receipt of these books and let me know whether you would like to receive the following books in the series.

The Director-General for the Arts and for International Cultural Relations,

Vondel
