Dear Dr Lukacs,

I am writing to see if there is any way I could study philosophy under your direction at the University.

I am 25 years old, married, and have an M.A. from Florida State University in Tallahassee. I have taught philosophy for two years, and have been active in both civil rights and peace work in my country. In the American academic world I find it impossible to learn about, discuss, or teach any subject from a Marxist point of view. From my own studies I have become convinced of the validity of Marxism-Leninism. I would like, however, to be able to pursue my research and study of the subject in an educational environment free of the sort of social and political intimidation now common in my country.

I would be grateful if you could send me any information.

Fraternally,

Thomas Riggins
