

The Manse,
Annan.
(Scotland)
12th Oct, 1906.

Dear Dr Goldziher,

I was extremely sorry to find that my letter did not reach you in time, and that I was unfortunately deprived of the pleasure of meeting you. That, however, was neither your fault nor mine, for I was unaware of your presence in the country till I noticed in the newspapers that you had been capped at Aberdeen. Let me hope for better fortune the next time you visit Scotland.

I am glad you were pleased with your trip. You were in good hands when you were in those of Dr McClymont.

I venture to send you a copy of one of our Scottish Reviews, which contains a notice of Nöldeke's Festschrift, and which possibly may interest you.

With kindest regards, and many thanks for your courteous letter of the 6th,

I remain,
Yours sincerely,
James A.richton
