

Budapest 12. July 1907

My dear Macdonald, I receive this moment the enclosed letter of Sir Charles Lyall. Be so good to send it back to me after having read it. I hope you are well again.
The Lectures (or better: the book given instead of the Popular Lectures wanted) are approaching to their finishing. I have still to complete the lecture on "Modern movements" and then go through the whole. This all will be all ^{the} finished all the end of this month. But then I must ~~take~~ take some repose for a week, to return then to my studio - studios. A thousand compliments to Mrs. Macdonald.

Yours faithfully
J Goldsmith
