

67 Mansfield Street,

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 3, '04.

Dear Professor Goldziher:

I have just learned that you are intending to come to New Haven next Thursday, and I wish to make sure of you as my guest. I trust you have not made any other arrangement. If you will please let me know by what train you are to arrive here, I will meet you at the station. I have been hoping that you might come this way, and I shall be very glad indeed to entertain you here, and have an opportunity to visit with you.

Auf Wiedersehen!

Faithfully yours,

Charles C. Torrey.
