Dear Prof: Lukacs,

In token appreciation for all that I have learned from your writings, I have taken the liberty to send you in a separate envelope a copy of my article, "Alienation and the Law of Value", which has recently appeared in "Etudes de Marxologie". I believe that my treatment of this subject has a lot in common with your own. If you have the time ~~xxxxxxxxxxxx~~ ~~xxxxxxxx~~ and/or interest, naturally I should be delighted to receive any comments - in English, French, or German. The article I am sending is an extract of my doctoral thesis at Oxford University on Marx's Conception of Human Nature, which will soon be published as a book. You may be interested, too, to know that I am currently writing a short book on Marx's method (based mostly on his unpublished Introduction to the Critique of Political Economy) and editing a book of Marx's writings on Hegel, including as many of his later-day asides as I can find.

Looking forward to hearing from you, I remain
