Dear Professor Goldziher:

I am in receipt of your card of the 25th of last month and see to my great regret that I have failed to send you my personal congratulations on the occasion of your anniversary on the 20th. I have been so busy since the academic year opened that I have forgotten many important dates. I certainly had in mind to send you my best wishes, and I trust that you will receive them even though they come after the event.

My little contribution to the volume was only a small tribute to the unique position that you occupy as an expounder of Islam in its deepest reaches.

We still remember the pleasant hours that we spent with Mrs. Goldziher and yourself in Budapest, and my ladies join in sending most cordial greetings to both of you.

I am

Very faithfully yours,

Richard Gotthard
